POWER to the MASSES

Sohot Films is an independent company based in Brixton, this town is one of the most talked about in London due to its renowned history and youth popularity.

Drawing from this rich and somewhat controversial past, with its influential diverse youth culture, we have developed Livetvradio.com, this site will be a multifarious global youth community - offering music, tv, fashion and fun.

We are developing new projects which includes: sitcoms, chatshows and a strong gritty feature film entitled 'Was it worth it'.

This picture looks at the demise and up-rise of today's youth culture from a wide London perspective.

About

So far, cast includes, Leroy Golding, (Formerly, Celestine Tavernier in Eastenders), Paul Leashon (Formerly, Hollie Benson in Hollyoaks) and Swiss from rap band 'So Solid Crew'. "Was it worth it" will be supported with a soundtrack which contains RnB, Gospel, jazz, Hip-Hop & reggae.

We are also devising ideas for a game and chat show together with a fashion lifestyle programme, this new innovative show will look at the marriage between urban music and lifestyle.
